While preparation for the Comprehensive Examination may begin as early as admission to candidacy, serious work on it should start at least six months before you plan to sit for the exam. You should begin by meeting with the DGS to discuss your plans and to get advice on your reading lists and committee. At this stage, you should identify the five faculty members who will serve as your Comprehensive Exam committee and decide on your Comprehensive Exam areas, while also beginning to revise the paper you intend to submit as part of the Portfolio.

Once a student has met all eligibility requirements (see the paragraph on Eligibility below) and has received the DGS go-ahead to begin preparing for comps, he or she should enroll in three 3 s. h. independent studies (selecting appropriate courses from the ENGL:7000-level series, one with each of his or her comprehensive exam area directors). Please note that the department does not offer independent study credit for reading groups. Enrollment in these independent studies may be concurrent or staggered over semesters, provided that the student hits the 60 s. h. mark by the end of the semester in which he or she takes the Comprehensive Exam. Students should discuss expectations for exam preparation with their area directors, and these expectations should be summarized on the online independent study approval form, which should be approved by the exam director and DGS in the first weeks of the semester (see Graduate Webforms at https://www.english.uiowa.edu/graduate-program/graduate-webforms.) Students often prefer to assemble various components of the portfolio concurrently and over the summer months, when they may not be enrolled—the nine independent study credits may thus be regarded as a tally of work completed toward comps.

Reading for the Examination and crafting of the Portfolio (which includes writing the introduction, developing the two course syllabi, drafting the five questions, writing the review essay and annotated bibliography, and final revision of the article) will usually take about six months. No later than three weeks before the date of the oral exam, the completed Portfolio, including the signed and approved reading lists and article and the two completed checklists, should be turned in to the GPC for final approval by the DGS; at this time you should also contact the GPC to schedule your oral examination. The department will provide free photocopying of five copies of the Portfolio for all students who meet the three-week deadline.

Comprehensive Portfolio and Examination

Overview

Eligibility

The Comprehensive Examination is taken after a student has fulfilled the foreign language, seminar, and distribution requirements, and no later than five semesters after admission to candidacy (although if a student has fewer than 24 s. h. of total graduate credit at the end of the semester of qualification, he or she is allowed five semesters after the completion of 24 s. h.). Students are eligible to take the examination during the semester in which they will have completed 60 s. h. of work. Of those 60 s. h., no more than 9 s. h. should be in Independent Study or S/U courses. The remaining 51 s. h. should be in regular graded courses at the 3000-level or above, at least 30 s. h. of which must be ENGL courses at the 5000-level or above.

1. Coverage: The Comprehensive Examination contains three parts, each under the supervision of one of three core members of the committee. These parts carry equal weight and represent the culmination of work done over a period of time in different courses as well as independent work done especially to prepare for the examination. The three parts of the examination are as follows:

   a. Historical Period: This part of the examination requires broad knowledge of writings in at least three different genres from a historical period of at least 100 years to be selected by the student. Examples of historical periods in recent Portfolios include:

      - English Literature before 1500
      - Early Modern English, 1546-1667
      - Nineteenth-Century British
      - American Literature 1914-present

   b. Special area: This part of the examination requires specific knowledge of the literature, criticism, and/or theory that constitute a particular field of study. This area, which must be demonstrably distinct from the Historical Period and Article, may be a second historical period, a literary genre, a body of theory, a major author or group of authors, a theme or topic, writing theory and/or pedagogy, or an interdisciplinary subject. Like the Historical Period, the Special Area allows candidates to develop and demonstrate their grasp of a field in which they hope to write and teach.

   c. Article: This part of the examination is a 25-35 page essay of publishable quality written in consultation with a faculty member, approved by that faculty member and submitted as part of the Portfolio. The article might start from scratch or begin with a paper written for a previous course, but in its final form it should elaborate a sophisticated critical position with respect to a literary theme, issue, author, period, text, or group of texts and should ideally become part of the dissertation.

The file cabinet in 308A EPB contains portfolios from past Comprehensive Exams for student review. In the top drawer, you will find an index to the portfolios, sorted by area and date. Feel free to make photocopies of the portfolios, but please do not remove them from the building. Below are three examples of Comprehensive Examination areas, offered for the purposes of illustration:

Sample Portfolio 1
Historical Period: English Literature before 1500
Special Area: Violence and Trauma in English Literature before 1500
Article: “Chaucer in Revolt: Violence in 1381 in the Wife of Bath’s Prologue and Tale”

Sample Portfolio 2
Historical Period: Early Modern English, 1511-1667
Special Area: Shakespeare Studies: Spying Out Rumors of Authorship
Article: “Puns, Spies, and Hidden Intents: Quibbling Authorship in King Lear”

Sample Portfolio 3
Historical Period: American Literature, 1914-present
Special Area: The Beat Goes On: Women Writers and the Beat Canon
Article: “Faulkner’s Corpse Bride: Revenging the Ravaged and Queering the Funeral”

2. The Committee: The Comprehensive Examination committee consists of five tenure-track faculty members, at least two of whom must be tenured faculty. The directors of the three principal areas of the examination, who must have appointments in the English Department, will form the core of this committee. In addition, each candidate asks two faculty members to serve as at-large examiners. One of these at-large members must be from the English Department, while the other can be either from English or another department within the University of Iowa.

3. Reading Lists: In consultation with the directors of the Historical Period and Special Area, students will prepare two lists of readings for the examination. The Historical Period list should consist of 70-100 items covering 100 years and at least three different genres; a small number of the items (usually no more than ten) should be key historical and/or critical works about the period. The Special Area reading list should include 35-40 items, and is typically heavier on critical and theoretical texts.

Portfolio
The Portfolio consists of five sections: a five to seven page Introduction, a 25-35 page article of publishable quality, five substantial questions based on the Historical Period list, a ten to fifteen page review essay discussing seven to ten texts accompanied by an annotated bibliography of each one of the remaining items from the Special Area list, and two course syllabi. A detailed description of these five sections follows.

Introduction: The Introduction to the Portfolio is designed to provide a five to seven page overview of the materials that follow, showing the relations among them. Because the Introduction represents the candidate’s own sense of the interconnections among the various parts of the Portfolio, it does not require prior approval by the faculty members serving on the candidate's committee, although the candidate is free to seek their advice while drafting the Introduction.

Historical Period Questions: The Historical Period list should consist of 70 to 100 texts. As a way of coming to terms with the fundamental issues animating the chosen historical period, the candidate should formulate five broadly conceived questions written in consultation with the area's director. The director must formally approve the questions by signing the Portfolio checklist.

Special Area Review Essay and Annotated Bibliography: The Special Area is examined via a ten to fifteen page review essay, which delineates the area through key primary and/or secondary texts. The essay should examine seven to ten texts from the reading list of thirty-five to forty items. Each one of the remaining texts from the Special Area list should be annotated separately in a full paragraph (250-300 words), following standard bibliographic form (i.e., citing author, title, and publication information for each item). The purpose of the review essay is to allow the candidate to articulate important issues or patterns linking the texts in the Special Area. It should result in a working document that might be the basis for future investigations, including the dissertation. The purpose of the annotated bibliography is to provide a detailed synopsis of texts that can then be referred to in writing the dissertation or in preparing for job interviews. The Special Area list, review essay, and annotated bibliography are written by the candidate in consultation with the area director. The area director's signature on the Special Area list indicates that the review essay and annotated bibliography are ready to go forward for defense at the oral exam.

Article: The Article should develop a sophisticated and original argument with respect to a literary theme, issue, author, period, text, or groups of texts in twenty-five to thirty-five pages. It should be of publishable quality and follow an acceptable format (e.g., MLA or Chicago) for citation of sources. The Article may represent new work, but more often develops out of a paper originally written for a course and subsequently revised under the guidance of its director, who is usually the faculty member for whom the paper was first written. With the help of comments and advice offered by the committee during the oral exam, the candidate should plan to submit a revised version of the article to a scholarly journal for consideration. The Article must be signed and approved by the area's director before inclusion in the portfolio. Ideally, the Article should form the basis of the student’s dissertation, though this is not required.

Syllabi: The pedagogical component of the Comprehensive Portfolio is demonstrated by two course syllabi designed for courses the candidate might teach, each course drawing upon one of the main areas of the exam and distributed with materials for that area. Out of the Historical Period’s focus on a broad range of texts, the candidate should design a lower-level survey course for undergraduate majors. For the Special Area the candidate should create a syllabus for an upper-level undergraduate course. Because constructing the syllabi for these courses indicates the candidate's ability to synthesize research with teaching, the pedagogical section should not be undertaken with close supervision by a committee member, but instead offer testimony to the candidate’s independence. Organization of the Portfolio: In order to help your committee locate items in your Portfolio, it is useful to paginate continuously and to provide a Table of Contents at the beginning. In most cases, the Portfolio should assemble its items in this order:

- Title Page
- Table of Contents
- Introduction
- Historical Area List (signed by its director)
- Five Questions
- Lower-level Survey Course Syllabus
- Special Area List (signed by its director)
- Review Essay
- Annotated Bibliography
- Upper-level Specialized Course Syllabus
- Article (signed by its director)

Oral Exam: The Portfolio should be given to the Comprehensive Examination Committee at least two weeks before the two-hour oral exam. Because the exam begins with the Historical Period, the director of that area directs the exam. (To clarify a possible point of confusion for some students: It is often the case that director of the Historical Period does not go on to direct the dissertation, since any one of the three core exam committee members is well situated to serve in that capacity.) Once the committee is assembled, the student leaves the room while members share their views on the quality of the Portfolio and the questions they would most like to ask the student. Then the student is called back into the room for the exam.

Fifty minutes of the oral examination will be set aside to examine the Historical Period. Another fifty minutes will review the Portfolio's additional sections. Although each examiner may raise questions about any portion of the Portfolio and reading lists, the committee will start the exam by asking the candidate to respond to one of the five prepared questions about the Historical Period; thereafter, any of the remaining four questions, as well as all the items on the Historical Period list and the proposed survey course are open to discussion. Discussion then moves to the Special Area, as the committee inquires about the texts chosen for review, those annotated from the list of thirty-five to forty entries, and those contributing to the advanced course proposed from the area. Finally, the discussion of the Article could productively lead to advice on publication. Students are strongly advised not to read from notes during the oral exam.

At the conclusion of the oral examination, the student leaves the room while committee members evaluate his or her performance. Members prepare a report on the exam for the Graduate College by voting "satisfactory," "reservations," or "unsatisfactory." The committee then calls the student back into the room to convey the results of the vote. The Graduate College Manual of Rules and Regulations states, "In the event of a report with two or more votes of 'Reservations,' the actions required of the student, by the committee, that are necessary to correct the deficiencies must be recorded and submitted to the Graduate College with the examination report form. Copies of the written statement of necessary actions should be kept by: the appropriate departmental executive, the chair of the examination committee, and the student. The statement must specify the time allowed for completion of the aforementioned actions. The language describing the actions must be specific.” Two "unsatisfactory" votes constitute a failure of the examination. At the option of the department, a student may repeat the examination once, but only once, and not within the same term. By regulation of the Graduate College, a student has five years, following successful completion of the comprehensive exam, in which to finish all substantive requirements for the Ph.D. degree. Please note, too, that the Graduate College does not permit the comprehensive examination and the defense of the dissertation to be scheduled in the same semester.

Graduate College Post-Comprehensive Research Award: In the semester following the one in which they pass their Comprehensive Exam, students may apply for this competitive award, which provides recipients with a semester of protected and supported time to pursue their research.
